

Renjo Gokyo Kora Trek

Description

Renjo Gokyo Kora Trek takes you to the best routes and a much more tranquil trail. The Renjo Gokyo Kora trek is a popular trek in the Everest region of Nepal. The journey offers a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to visit the stunning Gokyo Valley and the pristine high-altitude freshwater lakes.

The trek typically takes around 12-14 days to complete, starting and ending in the village of Lukla. The maximum altitude trekkers are above sea level is 5,360 meters (17,585 ft) the difficulty of the trek is graded as challenging. The trekkers are recommended to have some prior trekking experience. The best month for trekking in Renjo Gokyo Kora Trek is from September to November and from March to May.

It is an alternative, less crowded route to the traditional Everest Base Camp trek and offers stunning views of the Himalayas, including Mt. Everest, Lhotse, Makalu, and Cho Oyu. The trek begins in Lukla and takes you through the beautiful Gokyo Valley, where you will visit the Gokyo Lakes and have the opportunity to climb Gokyo Ri for panoramic views of the region. From Renjo, you will continue to the Gokyo village which is one of the three pass trekkers go through on the Three Pass Trek, which offers breathtaking views of the surrounding peaks, and then descend to the village of Gokyo which sits on the lap of Gokyo lake.

The trek then returns back to Namche Bazaar, and then to Lukla to end the trek. Along the way, trekkers will pass through traditional Sherpa villages and have the opportunity to experience the local culture and way of life. Similarly, trekkers come across Buddhist heritages like monasteries, hermitages, prayer wheels, mani, kanni, etc.

The walk entails trekking through mountains, green forests, hills, and an alpine landscape. As a result, a diverse topography is covered. In addition, there are several opportunities to see Himalayan wildlife, such as musk deer, jharal, barbary partridge, danphe, etc. The walk-and-talk of the Renjo Gokyo Kora Trek is "Yeti," an ape-like intelligent creature that is said to have wandered the snowy Himalayas of this region.

It is a great option for those looking for a more off-the-beaten-path, authentic, and cultural experience in the Everest region.

Practical Information

Q. Food and Accommodation

A. Food options range from the typical Nepalese Dal Bhat to Chinese and international cuisine. Nepalese Dal Bhat is a rice, lentils, and vegetable dish. With free refill options, you can eat as much as you like. Especially in Lukla and Namche, you can choose from a wide variety. Fruits of the Season are offered to you. The lodging is often twin-based. Most single rooms have a small table and chairs and two single beds. A cushion and sheet are typically found in beds. In most cases, a blanket is provided in the tea room.

Q. Best Season for the trek

A. The most incredible times for this hike are autumn (September to November) and spring (March to May). In autumn, you can see sunny days, and you can still see the snow-capped mountains. The best mountain views and most colorful scenery are in the spring. Hiking in winter (December-February) and monsoon season (June-August) is not recommended. There is a lot of snow and fog in winter, but it rains during the monsoon season. Flights to and from Lukla are frequently canceled and delayed at this time of the year.

Q. Trip Category

A. Trekkers need to be in good shape to complete it, as it is classified as a medium to challenging trek with some sharp accents on the marked trails. The trekker needs to walk for 3-9 hours daily. Trekking in these highlands can cause altitude sickness, so allowing enough time to acclimate is crucial.

Q. Health and Safety along the trail

A. The Himalayan Rescue Association operates a clinic at a permanent facility in the village of Pheriche. The Helicopter Charter is provided for emergencies to rescue individuals on excursions. During the peak climbing season in April/May, the Himalayan Rescue Association station is operated by volunteer medics at the base camp. Altitude sickness can occur because this is a high-altitude hike.

Therefore, it is necessary to limit alcohol consumption and give sufficient time to adapt. Water for personal hygiene is easily accessible on the go. Squat-type toilets are available during the hike. Water and a ladle can be used for flushing.
